Good afternoon,

I am writing as a Texan who is employed in the oil and gas industry. While I am very concerned about the current state of global oil supply and demand, I am not sure that the curtailment of production by the RRC is the wise thing to do. Prorating penalizes efficient producers and distorts free markets. It could also give Russia and the other OPEC nations leverage over Texas.

I appreciate consideration of my views and do not wish to testify at the scheduled meeting.
